THE STAR-ROUTE TRIAL. Conclusion of Mr. Wilson's Argument-

Sweeney Commences.
Yesterday in the star-route trial Mr. Wilson retuned his opening for the defense. Mr. Wilson called attention to the instructions issued to bid-ders by the Post-Office Department, and which were in force long before General Brady's admin-Istration. The Second Assistant Postmaster-General had no time to go over all these routes in de-iall, but claimed that the evidence would show that what he had said of the few routes which he inil, but claimed that the evidence would show that what he had said of the few routes which he had considered in detail would apply to all. The evidence would show that invariably where there was a failure on the part of the contractor. Mr. Brady imposed upon them rigorously the fines and deductions provided for by the regulations of the legistrianent. He asked if a man in a conspiracy would thus fine his co-conspirator.

THE COUNSELTHEN ARRUED at considerable length on the statute requiring the Postmasser-General in increasing mail ervices to have due regard for productiveness and other circumstances. The receipts of the post-offices were no criterion of the value of the raute. The offices showed only the mail that was sent out of the office, they did not show the through mail. Nothing could be more deceptive than to present such figures to the jury and claim that they represented the value of the route. The experts who would be here would tell the jury that that was no criterion by which to judge of the importance of a route; that it was a build deception. The government, he claimed, did not regard productiveness as the criteriou. The potential words in the statute were, "and other circumstances." Mr. Wilson then, as great length, went into the history of mail-route legislation. Tracing it up from 1792, when the first act was found bearing on the surject, he read the various statutes passed by Congress governing the Post-Office Department; referred to the establishment of pony expresses, and showed that Congress in establishing routes across the wide expanse that lay between the Pacific slope and the East, after the close of the Mexican war, did not consider the question of what return they would get for their outlay. One route that had cost $600,000 had returned $27,000, and another which entailed a like exponditure produced a revenue of $2,000. He then referred to the letter-carrier system, but who claimed that the gentleman was going outside the proper limits of an opening andress. After some discussion between causel, Judge Wylle stated the restrictions placed upon an opening statement. Mr. Wilson said the government was constantly shortening trips by faving the mails carried on fast trains. What they leoked for was not productives, but celerity. Mr. Wilson read figures of various routes, whose cost ranged from $100 to $150 per mile, in years preceding Mr. Brady's accession to office. If they take the average of the service, it was cheaper under his administration than it had been for many years before. In 1853 the cost of carriage per mile was 5.36 cents; in 1868 it had grown to 11.90 cents, but under Mr. Brady's administration was reduced to 9.24 cents. Referring to comparisons made with lettings under Mr. Brady's administration was reduced to 9.24 cents. Referring to comparisons made with lettings under Mr. Brady's administration and those of 1882, he said that there had been immense changes in star routes, on account of the extension of railroads. He referred also to other conditions that had changed. As to the charges of favorisism to contractors, Mr. Wilson claimed that the records would show there had been no such favor shown. In regard to made by contractors he claimed that it was a tow up whether they made anything or not out of the contracts; some times they did and often they did not. Mr. Wilson then referred to the methods of doing business, and claimed that Mr. Brady never anne-dated an order. He contended that Turner had nothing to do with the case, and ought never to have been dragged into it, and that the prosecution would them-elves say there was no cause of complaint saxious him. He claimed to be able to show that Rerdell's confession was a fabrication, and that the conspiracy, if any existed, was a very long-range one. He closest by drawing attention to Mr. Brady's services during the war and also to Mr. Turner's, and asked that the jury vindicate his clients.

AFTER THE RECESS,

Mr. Hine opened for Messrs, Valle and Miner, and gave a history of Mr. Miner's antecedents and his relations with ex-Sensor Dorsey. He claimed that no complaint had been made about the way the service was performed. His clients had business relations with some of the other defendants, who had contracts in the same Territory, but there was no complaint. At 250 Mr. McSweeney began the closing speech for the defense. He asked the court to arjourn until to improve, but this be declined to do. Mr. McSweeney began by giving an account of ex-Sensor Dorsey's early days, until the court adjourned.

BUILDING ASSOCIATIONS.

Interesting Information,
The thirty-second regular meeting of the Equitable Building Association was held last night at ble Building Association was held last night at Mariot's Hail, H. H. Twombly, vice-president, in the chair, and John Joy Edson, secretary, assisted by A. A. Brooke, attorney. The bidding-was quite lively, and the funds on hand were readily disposed of. Eleven thousand seven hundred dolars cash were advanced at an average premium of 63 per cent, the monthly dues for each $1,000 being—On stock and return of advance, $10.83; an premium or interest, $5.25; total, $10.85 per month. The above is given to answer an inquiry so often made as to the amount that is applied on principal and the amount of interest paid, which is a very important matter to purchasers. The above rate is equivalent to 62, per cent, per annum. At the meeting of the Perpetnal Building Association, held last evening, W. H. A report was laid before the meeting from the committee having the matter in charge of going to the proposed contest at Indianapolis. They reported that, after correspondence, they learned that the regulations only admitted soldlers belonging to a single military company, and that commanding officers were required to make affidavit that the men were not picked squads from several companies, but bona fide members of a single company. Under these regulations the corps would be barred out, as having only recently organized, they cannot make up a picked squad from any one company.

Captain Boyton's Exhibition.

An immense concourse of people gathered upon the Long Bridge and along the shores of the river in that vicinity vesterday afternoon to witness the wonderful squatic exhibition of Captain Paul Boyton. At sharp 4 o'clock Captain Boyton appeared in his life-saving costume, and at once took to water. A programme of twenty-one numbers was carried out, during which the Captain floated, paddled, drew his miniature boat, stood up in the water, and sat, drank, and worte, fired off rockets, built a raft, and did all sorts of feats, ending by blowing up a miniature "enemy's ship" with such effectiveness that there was hardly a splinter left, and with such force that many of the spectators were treated to a young shower-bath. The crowd when the exhibition was over mostly repaired to the whale tent, where they tweed the manumenth aquatic manimal. A bitter, mocking smile—the smile of a demon that has been baffled in his unholy efforts to lure a soul to the uttermost depths of the Inferno played around the Grecian lips of Girofie Mahaffy as these cruci words fell with cruci inclaiveness from her lips. Over the backyard fence came the allvery gleams of the inconstant moon as she silvery gleams of the inconstant moon as she moved through the beavens in brilliant splendor, and touched with gentle band the mess-covered woodshed and caused the dog, whose blood-curding bay had fallen in such four ul cadences men Rupert Retherington's large, Navy-Yard ears, to stand out, perfect in every outline, against the pure mezzotints of the recently-painted doorstep. 'You are jesting, sweethear,' murmured Rupert, pulling up his pants so they would not wrinkle at the knees, and scating blusself beside the girl.

pert, pulling up his pants so they would not wrinkle at the knees, and senting himself beside the girl.

"Am I?" was the reply in cold Eastern Branch accents, that seemed to Ruper to pierce his very vest. "If you really think so look out of the window."

Rupert obeyed. The moonlight streamed into the room as he pushed aside the heavy pomegranate curtains, falling in meliow spiender on vest of malachite, and alabaster, on statue and bonze. Tazzas of japer and lapis latuli stood in recess and alcove crowded with flowers; curious trifles in gold and silver carving, in amber and in saic stood on table and etagere. A curiously-wrought sideboard that was now in the days of the Crusselers stood fall of Tharp's best Amber-time! sour mash, as Rupert well knew. While en a ed with the somber thoughts which the seeme induced, a hand fell lightly upon his shou der. He turned and faced Giroße.

"And do you really mean what you say, sweetheart?" he asked.

"Yes," replied the girl. "Ti ere must be some kind of an understanding. I cannot buff away all the days of my youth."

"Enough," said Rupert, "I will marry you."

"But when?" asked the girl.

Leaning over the beautiful girl he hissed in her car the faceful words: "How Joe Parker bets on the winning horse,"—From a Sare Thing, by Neduardo Bratee.

Happy faces thronged the streets adjacent to our stores during the past week. Still more of them will be seen for the balance of the season, for our reductions are greater than ever. Come and look at the few BARGAINS we describe below, and you will appreciate the truth of our assertion that such goods at such prices, are not to be had anywhere in Washington.

Men's Shirts, formerly $1, now 80 cents. This may appear but a small reduction, but as these are all standard goods, with best 1800 Linen Bosoms reinforced, we can vouch for good BARGAINS.

WE HAVE 2,000 OF THOSE LINEN COLLARS left, which made such a turcre for the last twelve mouths, at 5 cents, but, as most of them are slightly solid, we have reduced them to 2 cents. They must so sold.

Do not consider this idle talk. Every lady in Washington knows the magnitude of our stock, which, we can safely state, is three times as large as the stock of any other merchant in tible dily. Therefore, prepare for bargaliae, as by the time we nove into our NeW HOUSE we expect to reduce the stock to the smallest in the city. The goods are all fresh, having sort all our old trash to New York auction to be sold to the highest bidder. Call early in the morning to avoid the immense rush.
